Profile

After almost 20 years of practice at the Johannesburg Bar as an Advocate of the High Court of South Africa, Warren transferred to the UK in early 2016 to continue and develop his practice here. During his more than two decades in practice Warren has enjoyed a wide-ranging practice encompassing all aspects of commercial litigation, involving a fair amount of cross-border and international disputes.

Warren has extraordinary advocacy experience and is equally comfortable in the High Courts of several jurisdictions but also of advocacy before several Appellate Courts. He is frequently instructed in High Court disputes involving complex property and commercial leasing disputes, as well as banking and financial services in the telecommunications industry. In South Africa, Warren was frequently instructed on behalf of some of the largest gold and platinum mining companies in the world to advise and act in large-scale industrial disputes and developed a niche employment law practice focusing on collective bargaining, dismissal, whistleblowing and redundancy disputes. In 2013 he was invited to be an Acting Judge (equivalent to a Deputy High Court Judge) of the Labour Court of South Africa which he held until his departure for the UK in 2016. Warren has written several important reported judgments in judicial review matters such as Concor Holdings (Pty) Limited v Mazibuko (<http://www.saflii.org/za/cases/ZALCJHB/2013/141.html>) which was upheld by the Labour Appeal Court and Hon Shin Enterprises v National Union of Metalworkers of SA (<http://www.saflii.org/za/cases/ZALCJHB/2013/335.html>). Warren has substantial experience and familiarity with urgent High Court applications, injunctions and freezing orders in all areas of commercial, insolvency and property law.

Warren has extensive experience of cross-border litigation and enjoys the interplay of different legal systems. He was instructed to appear in a series of urgent applications in the Botswana High Court on behalf of a Belgian diamond trader involving the hostile takeover of a diamond trading company, in the midst of simultaneous litigation in Europe, working as part of a team with Belgian lawyers. He currently acts for and advises South African multinational companies in UK litigation matters.

Warren's background as a barrister and part-time judge in South Africa, and his subsequent transfer to the UK, have afforded him substantial experience and a strong interest in the study and practice of comparative law. He is particularly interested in how common law systems interact and the enforcement of foreign judgments. He has been editor of the chapter on South Africa in Enforcement of Foreign Judgments (Kluwer Law International BV, Netherlands) for the past eight years.
