Harry has a wide-ranging practice in all areas covered by the Business and Property Team with particular focus on the fields of construction, property and contractual disputes.

Harry's practice is developing particularly strongly in the field of construction disputes. His experiences includes dealing with all manner of residential and commercial property construction disputes, including new build properties involving new build warranties such as the Premier Guarantee.

Harry's professional background includes his work in the commercial litigation department at a leading regional firm of solicitors. There he gained experience in a wide range of complex commercial litigation cases including; partnership disputes, intellectual property, construction and breach of contract. As a result, Harry has worked throughout the stages of litigation, arbitration, and adjudication, from start until final hearing. In addition to the preparation of pre-action communications, drafting pleadings, witness statements, and other court documents, including those relating to costs, he has been in several substantial disclosure exercises under the Business and Property Courts. He has also been involved in the preparation for and attendance at mediation.

Expertise

Commercial Litigation

Harry is experienced in all aspects of contractual disputes, including debt recovery, sale and supply of goods and services, consumer credit finance and disputes surrounding directors' loans.

Harry is regularly instructed to advise and represents clients in all court proceedings, including multi and fast-track trials, small claims and interlocutory hearings. Harry's busy court practice also includes other hearings such as interlocutory applications and procedural hearings (such as CCMCs).

Alongside his busy court practice, Harry has a busy paper practice drafting statements of case and providing advice.

Notable Commercial Litigation cases

Successfully acted in a claim against an international shipping agent, which resulted in a settlement of over £100,000 (January 2024)

Successfully secured an order for security for costs on behalf of two out of three Defendants in a long running commercial dispute involving claims of breach of fiduciary duties and fraud (August 2023)

Successfully acting for a Claimant in a Fast Track claim for monies owed under a director's loan (November 2021).

Successfully appeared in an application to set aside judgment on behalf of a multi-national telecommunications company (October 2021).

Technology and Construction

Harry's practice in construction law continues to develop. Harry has experience across the various areas of construction law, from claims against new home builders to disputes concerning larger commercial construction contracts.

New Home Builders

Harry has appeared on behalf of several of the UK's well-known new home builders defending claims brought alleging defective works.

With a background in the construction industry, specifically roofing, Harry is very capable of handling complex expert evidence and discussing matters with expert building surveyors in conference. Harry's recent cases in this area have left him well versed with the specifics of the specific defects which are commonly pleaded in these cases, such as issues with the internal air ventilation system.

Harry understands the value of the reputation of home builders and is able to deal with papers and instructions with this in mind.

Construction work to residential dwellings

Harry has gained a significant depth of experience dealing with cases involving residential dwellings and refurbishment works. He is particularly well versed at handling poorly particularised contracts between employers and contractors and dealing with the evidence accordingly.

As with new homes, Harry's knowledge of the finer points of residential construction disputes is rapidly developing. For example, Harry's most recent instructions involved the use of Sarking on a Scottish property.

Commercial Construction Contracts

In addition to his broad experience in dealing with residential dwellings, Harry has handled matters involving JCT Contracts and litigation involving large-scale commercial contracts.

Real Estate Litigation

Harry has an active court and paper practice in all areas of real estate litigation.

Commercial Landlord and Tenant

Harry is regularly instructed on behalf of both landlords and tenants in respect of proceedings involving forfeiture and dilapidations. Appearing in court on a frequent basis, Harry has an understanding of the realities of litigation, especially when it involves tenancies covered by the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954.

Boundary & Rights of Way Disputes

Harry is equally well versed in matters involving disputes over boundaries, rights of way, easements and licences.

Agricultural Holdings

In addition to his usual practice in this area, Harry has also dealt with matters concerning the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986. Harry is familiar with this area and able to advise on disputes arising from tenancies over agricultural land.

Residential Landlord and Tenant

Harry's practice in real estate litigation also extends to residential possession cases. Harry understands the complex law in this area and the need to handle each case in a high level of detail to ensure that the requirements to obtain an order for possession are met.

Partnership

Harry's expertise in this area is developing on a foundation of his experience prior to coming to the bar. Whilst working in a solicitors practice, Harry assisted a senior partner in several partnership disputes both in the Business & Property Courts and at arbitration. His experience also extends to being involved in several substantial disclosure exercises.

Sport

Harry has a developing practice in this area. Most recently he appeared in a EFL Disciplinary Commission hearing.
