Will is a member of the Personal Injury and Clinical Negligence team, having successfully completed pupillage under the supervision of Claire Steward and Louise Green.

Throughout his pupillage, Will gained experience dealing with high-value and complex cases, including, in particular, clinical negligence and serious personal injury.

As part of his practice, Will successfully represents both Claimants and Defendants dealing with a variety of hearings, including small claims and disposals (both MOJ Stage 3s and OIC hearings), fast track trials, application hearings, and case management hearings such as CCMCs and Pre-Trial Reviews.

Will has also developed a busy regulatory practice and is regularly instructed by the Royal College of Nursing to act on behalf of Registrant Nurses before the Nursing and Midwifery Council.

In addition to his court work, Will has a growing paperwork practice and he accepts instructions for all types of written work, including drafting pleadings, opinions and advices.

Prior to commencing work at the Bar, Will worked as a paralegal at a global law firm in their counter-fraud team. He therefore has considerable experience in dealing with claims involving allegations of fundamental dishonesty.
